This is where your summary for your company will go. A company summary in a capability statement is a concise, one-page document that acts as a resume for a business, highlighting its core competencies, past performance, and unique strengths to potential clients or partners. It serves as a marketing tool to showcase what a company does, why it does it well, and why it should be chosen over competitors.

CORE COMPETENCIES

In a capability statement, a company's core competencies are the unique skills, products, and services that give it a competitive advantage and are difficult for rivals to imitate. This section highlights what a company does best and includes defining strengths like specialized services, superior quality control, innovation, and reliability.

DIFFERENTIATORS

A company differentiator in a capability statement is a unique feature, attribute, or capability that sets a company apart from its competitors. This section of the document highlights what makes the company the best choice for a potential customer, showcasing advantages like special certifications, unique methodologies, specific agency experience, or specialized employee qualifications.
